Antoschowitz, A German, Was China's J. E. Hoover

By BOB KALLER

It's a long way from the turbulent coast of China to the quiet vistas of the Monterey Peninsula but Theodor Antoschowitz made it.

Antoschowitz, who will be 80 this coming February, was a German professional police administrator, who spent most of his working life in China.

This odd state of affairs came about in the following manner. Antoschowitz who was born in Upper Silesia in 1876 had always had an interest in police work, and when he was 21 promptly joined the military police. Within two years he was shipped out to Tsingtao, then a German colony on the China coast.

Here he was just in time to witness the Boxer Rebellion, and to spend a nervous period awaiting an attack on the colony that actually never came. By 1905 he was out of the military and into the civilian police. From this time forward, he and a small group of German police administrators, plus a force of Chinese policemen, were responsible for law and order over a district that sometimes contained several hundred thousand in population.

He carried the rank of Stationmaster (roughly equivalent to a captain) for the district and accomplished his task of cleaning his area of crime so well that his district became a mecca for every well-known criminal in China for a time.

This paradoxical state of affairs was the result of a tacit recognition among the underworld that it did not pay to carry on business in Tsingtao since you were pretty sure to get caught. Also, since the area was under German jurisdiction, the lightfingered gentry figured they would not be bothered.

So they transferred their homes, and bank accounts to Tsingtao; living quite respectably, while they carried on their normal nefarious activities elsewhere. "In a short time," laughs "Mr. An," as he was known by the Chinese, "the number of pawn shops in Tsingtao jumped from one to 20."

This happy state for the Chinese underworld was ended by the case of one Foo-Al. The latter gentleman possessed almost a private army of his own. He specialized in the numbers racket and in collecting the ears of hapless ransom victims who failed to get up the required sums in time. Needless to say, he was high on the Chinese Government hit parade list of wanted men.

Students Announce All-Out Party For Scholarship Fund

The students of Carmel High School are planning a Community Party. It is to be a benefit fashion show and dance to be held on the evening of November 5 from 8:00 o'clock till midnight in the school gymnasium. Funds are to be used to bring another foreign student to Carmel next year.

Lisl Kovats of Austria, now attending the High School, is the first foreign exchange student to come to Carmel under the auspices of the American Field Services Foreign Student Exchange Fund with the assistance of money raised last year by the Carmel students in a variety of events. This year they plan to concentrate their fund raising in one big party. There will be over 100 models, both boys and girls, in the fashion show and a seven piece band will play for the dancing following the show. There will also be refreshments.

This concerted effort of the students is under the co-ordination of officers of the Girls League with a boy and girl representative from each class to take charge of that class' special responsibility for the evening. Seniors are in charge of arrangements; Juniors will decorate and provide entertainment; Sophomores will do publicity, and sell tickets and the Freshmen are to feed the guests and clean up afterwards. This is an all-school effort and the students hope to make it an all-out community event.

Guild Hall Theatre To Present Original Ron Bostwick Play

The Forest Theatre Guild will present High Mesa an original drama by Ron Bostwick of Carmel in the Guild Hall Experimental Theatre Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Oct 21, 22, and 23 and the following weekend Oct. 28, 29, and 30.

High Mesa, a contemporary drama concerning the responsibilities of an automatic physicist will also be directed by Bostwick. Jack James is the producer. Sets by Louise Ryan James. Costumes by Hazel McClellan. Properties by Jan Ford. Publicity by Joan McKinney.

The cast includes Dr. Douglas MacFarlane, Bea Mauser, Grace Carol Kearney, Elaine Feuerborn, Floyd Adams Jr., Mary Bister, Jan Ford.

The play will open at 8:30 o'clock.

BUILDING FOR WALT PILOT

This afternoon at 4:00 o'clock the Planning Commission will consider plans for the building which Keith Evans is planning to build at the northeast corner of Junipero and Sixth Streets. This building is to be leased by Walt Pilot for his grocery business. It will have 5,000 square feet of floor space and be the servette type. Parking for 75 to 100 cars is planned about the proposed building. Work on the structure is planned to begin at the first of next year with Walt moving his business from Ocean Avenue in May. Evans will move his Plaza Fuel office to other property which he owns in the vicinity if the plans go through.

WORLD AFFAIRS LECTURE

"Co-existence cannot simply mean the absence of war; it must also mean something more positive, a willingness to seek mutually beneficial contacts," says Dr. David Wightman, teacher of international economic history in the University of Birmingham. Some of the ways currently being used to accomplish this will be discussed by Dr. Wightman at a meeting of the World Affairs Council of the Monterey Peninsula, to be held in the Carmel High School cafeteria at 8:00 o'clock Friday evening. The meeting will be open to the public, and will be preceded by a dinner honoring the speaker.

Dr. Wightman has recently completed a study of the economic Commission for Europe.

Organizations Asked To Co-operate On A Community Calendar

A Community Calendar is to be compiled under the sponsorship of the Carmel Parent-Teacher Association, with headquarters for the calendar to be the Pine Cone office. The work of organizing the calendar is being undertaken by a committee composed of Mrs. James Pruitt, Mrs. Laidlaw Williams and William Wakefield, recreation director for the community.

For some years past, due to the growth of Carmel, it has been increasingly difficult for organizations to schedule events that will not conflict with the affairs arranged by other groups. The P.T.A. Carnival can't be held on the first day of the fishing season; the Music Society and the County Symphony must stagger their concerts at different intervals; the Youth Center Follies can't fall on the same evening as a jazz concert at Sunset school and the various church, club, scout and school events can't come on the same day at the same time. It has taken time, effort and co-operation to work in harmony in scheduling events.

With a Community Calendar established in a central location, all organizations may in a few minutes find out what dates are free for their events. The committee is asking for some co-operation in establishing the calendar, however, they are requesting all organizations, who now have their schedules established, either definitely or tentatively, to send these schedules to William Wakefield, Box 500, Carmel. These dates should be sent in immediately so that the basic calendar may be compiled and eliminate future confusion. A Community Calendar is a co-operative community venture, usually undertaken by chambers of commerce, . . . but . . . Carmel is still different . . . it has no chamber of commerce so the P.T.A. and the Pine Cone are offering community help.

Citizens' Committee Learns Duties From Wire Recording

Lawrence Livingston, Jr., planning consultant, was not present Tuesday afternoon at the first meeting of the advisory committee on the master plan for Carmel, but the group, 42 present out of a membership of 47, received an explanation of their function in his words and voice through a playback of a wire recording made at a planning commission meeting when Livingston was asked what the duties of the advisory committee are to be. As outlined then, they are to convey the wishes of the community to Planner Livingston and to interpret the plan to the community after it has been formulated.

Livingston posed 12 questions to start the committee on its thinking. They were published in the Pine Cone, issue of August 18.

The meeting was opened by Mayor Horace Lyon who made a welcoming speech. Frank Putnam, planning commission chairman, explained to the committee, the physical area the plan is to encompass. The committee will meet with Livingston next week.

Your Pine Cone Recommends . . . Miller's $19 Plan

Carmelites — (or Carmelians), are reacting with their usual spontaneity to a plea for help. The Community Chest Drive, now underway, has asked for a 20% increase in donations to meet the increased expense in operating the 19 agencies affiliated with the Chest; to "Build A Better Community." To date, the response has been most gratifying, with a good proportion of the contributions being raised.

Jack Miller, in charge of the business area solicitation, has evolved a $19 plan, for new givers and those who wish to increase previous gifts. By giving $1.00 for each of the 19 agencies, donors can feel a complete share in this community responsibility. Proceeds to date are $9,182.35 for the Carmel area.

CARMEL PREPS DUMPED BY HOLLISTER HAYBALERS

Outcharged, outsped, and outscored, Carmel High's varsity football team ran into a surprisingly strong Hollister eleven last Friday night and received for their first loss of the '55 season, 32 to 13. The Hollister line opened gaping running lanes for the swift Haybaler backs who simply outran the Padre secondary. While the varsity was taken over the bumps by the classy Haybaler squad, the Little Padres put together their best game to down the Hollister junior-varsity, 15 - 7.

It didn't take Hollister long to show a capacity crowd who was going to be boss in the varsity game. After taking possession on their own 35-yard line following the opening kickoff, the Haybalers moved the 65 yards in exactly two plays as Rudy Medina bolted inside tackle for 35 gained and halfback Silva got 30 more on the second play to rack up the first six points. The padres rallied to smother a running attempt for the conversion but points were cheap for the hard-hitting 'Balers. On the ensuing kickoff, Carmel moved into Haybaler territory where a fumble was recovered by the alert Hollister forwards to set up their second scoring advance. It took the hosts five running plays to hit pay dirt this time as fullback Castellano rammed the last five yards for the score. Carmel again stopped the conversion attempt and Hollister was in front 12-0 with less than 8 minutes gone. Hollister intercepted one of Mike Mosolf's aerials early in the second period to set up their third score.

Carmel got on the board just as the half ended when Mosolf pitched to George Wightman who tossed a lateral to West Whittaker for the score. Kyk Reid's kick was between the uprights and the half ended with Hollister leading, 19 to 7. The Padres got their second TD in the fourth period when Mosolf slanted off the 'Baler left tackle for an 8-yard scoring play. Hollister picked up two more scores in the second half, getting one late in the third period with the same power running which paid off in the first half and grinding out 65-yard march in the final period.

Completely dominated by the superior Hollister line, Carmel was forced out of their split-T attack and had to rely on a spread of fence to put a passing attack to work. With Whittaker, Wightman, Jennings, and McCormack as receivers, the Padres racked up 150 yards through the air but the potent Hollister running offense overcame Carmel's air superiority.

Coach Buzz Rainer's determined junior-varsity crew ran to a 15-7 win over the Hollister Hayseeds as David Ostrander crashed over for a pair of scores and center John Stiles cornered a Hollister runner in the end zone for a safety. The Padre Babes completely outclassed the host junior-varsity and look to be the class of the league.

POWERFUL GILROY ELEVEN HERE SATURDAY

There's no such thing as a breather for the Carmel High football squad which comes out of a bruising battle with the rugged Hollister aggregation to greet the super-charged Gilroy Mustangs at Bardarson Field Saturday afternoon. Football experts rate Gilroy as the best football team in this area and that includes all the schools in the A division of the CCAL. The Mustangs rightly deserve the high rating as they have gone out of their class to defeat the Lowell Indians of the San Francisco Athletic Association and two weeks ago trounced San Luis Obispo High School, 35 to 6. Last Friday night, Gilroy riddled the King City eleven, 22 to 0, and had three touchdowns called back by penalties and quick whistles. The Mustangs boast a line which averages close to 200-pounds with two college-caliber tackles, Harrisson and Mazzuca, one of the best running backs in Northern California, Jim Fahey, and a magician, Ron Leonti, at quarterback. Several times this season, Leonti has faked so well that officials have blown the ball dead while following faking backs who are running empty handed. Leonti is also rated the best forward passer in the Coast Counties Athletic League.

If the Padres can successfully stop the running thrusts of Fahey, Saturday's game could well develop into a passing duel between Leonti and Carmel's Mike Mosolf. Carmel showed an aptitude for moving the ball through the air in their losing effort at Hollister and Gilroy scored all their touchdowns via the air lanes against King City.

In a 12:15 prelim, the undefeated Carmel junior-varsity clashes with the Gilroy Ponies in a game which should be a severe test for Rainer's Ramblers. The Gilroy limiteds pack a potent passing attack which is capable of going all the way in one play.

Grooming our Pipe lines...

...keeping them clean and shipshape, rustless and leak-proof, is a continuous process. It is a job that has our maintenance crews busy season after season.

In the last eight years many miles of our pipelines have been cement lined. We have found that the use of cement keeps steel and iron pipe walls smooth and free of rust.

This cement smoothness permits water to move through the pipes with least resistance, giving you better pressure at your faucet. It also permits maximum flow when needed.

The lack of rust improves the quality of water and sharply reduces the expense of repairing leaks.

Well-groomed pipelines are outstanding examples of our constant efforts to improve methods of operation. Our aim always is to provide dependable, top-quality water service at the least possible cost.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

The visible record file has come at last and is being prepared for service. It may be at the circulation desk by the time this newspaper reaches your eager hands. At first glance, the file looks like the answer to a long-felt need. It will tell you what books are now on order, when they were ordered, and also what books are new in the library. Be prepared to have the people at the desk introduce you to the file again and again, because we are so eager to have all the library patrons learn to use it, rely upon it, and be happy with it.

At its last meeting the Board of Trustees of this library decided to have the big table on the top level moved down one flight of stairs to the reference section to be used by people reading and studying there. This table has been near the Harrison collection of religious books, and was part of the Harrison furniture. The reason for moving the table was to protect it and put it in a place where the library staff could keep a watchful eye on it. With the increasing pressure of work in the library, it was becoming almost impossible to oversee the treatment the table was receiving. Several youthful people had recently proceeded to put their initials into the top of the table. Besides that, it seemed to encourage the forbidden practice of eating in the library, and the equally forbidden practice of hiding the resulting garbage behind the neighboring books. With the table on the main level, we can be sure that no one is yielding to that impulse to leave his initials behind him.

My Son Johnny was written, of course, by Johnny's father John McNulty. The jacket blurb says it is a love story between John McNulty and his small son, which began in Johnny's infancy and has progressed steadily to the present, when Johnny is five and a half years old. No doubt many a father reading this delightful book will recall with a warm smile of pleasant memory a number of similar incidents with his own small son or daughter.

Speaking of children, we have a late book from the Gesell Institute of Child Development, written by Frances Ilg, and entitled Child Behavior. The book discusses many problems encountered by parent and teacher, gives the whys wherefores, and also the answers.

Two books recently appeared at the same time, both edited by Richard Ketchum. The title of one is What Is Communism?, and of the other, What Is Democracy? Both books begin with this statement, "Once every two seconds a new life is given to the world and is cast into the moving stream which is the force of history. Sooner or later, as all human beings have done since the beginning of time, each individual begins his search for a faith by which to live. In his quest for that faith, each turns to something higher than himself—a body of ideals which promises to give meaning to his life." The tone of both books is as objective as possible, but the basic truth is plainly apparent.

This truth is that communism is as a stream of empty promises and positive threats, and that the record of democracy is one of solid achievements and opportunity.

Three new novels go out to the shelves this week, as well as several other pieces of non-fiction including The Strange Career of Jim Crow, by Woodward. Come in and look them over.

There is a new State of California chapter, to which the Carmel Chapter belongs. The first California state convention will be held in Oakdale, on October 22, to which Mrs. Elise Beaton, the chapter sponsor and Latin teacher of Carmel High School, will take the following four students as delegates: Suzann Pilot, Gay Morris, Terry Curran, and Owen Kearns.

Tomorrow after school the Junior Class will hold a cake sale and only iron-willed people can pass up such delicious cakes.

Gerald Heard On Art And The Artist

Art and the Artist—Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow is the subject which Gerald Heard, author, philosopher and lecturer has chosen to discuss on October 20 at 8:30 o'clock in the Carmel Woman's Club under the sponsorship of the Carl Cherry Foundation.

Heard is considered by such men as Somerset Maugham and Aldous Huxley to possess one of the greatest funds of knowledge on the history and development of mankind in the world today. He has written numerous books, some of them being The Future of Man, a discussion of world philosophy; Taste of Money, a novel dealing with the supernatural; God In History and The Third Morality.

Not only will the place of art and the artist in society be evaluated in the comprehensive talk to be given by Gerald Heard but also the meaning of modern art and a prophetic view of the future of art.

Paul Lauritz Shows Landscape Mastery in One Man Exhibit

Paul Lauritz, whose current show of 46 pictures, oils, water colors and drawings will remain on display until November 15 at the Artists Guild of America, Inc., Gallery, shows himself master of the sweeping landscape, whether it be Alaskan glacier, Arizona mesa and desert, Carmel coastline, Sierra streams and canyons, Mount Rainier or the valleys of Oregon and Washington. He interprets the mood of each scene, and its season, with emotional insight, expressed with a controlled palette and good design.

Among the seascapes, Storm Lashed Coast, Carmel, is outstanding. In this picture, Lauritz has captured the power of the surging surf breaking over rocks as the storm spends its last fury on the shoreline. The mood is subdued, as is the color, but the power is there.

The color of Arizona rock formations is well caught by Lauritz, and he uses these same formations to create fine design. The Northwest landscapes catch the brooding quality of the rainy country. But to this reviewer, the gems of the oil collection are two smaller canvases entitled Boy Fishing, High Sierra; and Mountain Stream, High Sierra. Here, painting in a freer manner than in the larger pictures, and with a freer use of bright color and less restrained design, Lauritz has created two glowing landscapes, carefree, delightful, excellent in every way.

The water colors in the upper gallery are good, Lauritz expresses himself well in this medium and especially to be commended is the handling of clouds. The five drawings are delightful, especially, Winter Stream, where design in clearly defined forms and good use of dark and light values make this little picture something to be remembered. M. L.

Spiritual Progress Cited By Lecturer

World chaos and confusion are yielding to spiritual growth and progress said Mary C. Holloway of Shreveport, Louisiana, in a Christian Science lecture here Monday evening.

Those who gain a spiritual understanding of God's power and goodness have no reason to fear the atomic age, the lecturer stated.

Mrs. Holloway, a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, spoke under the auspices of First Church of Christ Scientist. Her subject was Christian Science: Man's Divine Destiny Revealed. She was introduced by Mr. Frank La Fontaine, Second Reader.

Lasting peace, health, and harmony result from spiritually correct knowledge of the things of God, Mrs. Holloway declared. She defined these "things" as God's loving laws which operate to bring humanity freedom and security.

"They are forever ours, by divine decree to reflect," she said, adding that "as we do reflect them, we are healed of the deflections, the distractions or delusions, which hold mankind in bondage."

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
C. Edward Graves
Western Representative,
National Parks Association.

WHOOPING CRANES THREATENED

Conservation of wild life becomes headline news these days when a species is threatened with extermination and only a few individuals, whose movements are known, remain. That has not always been true and it is striking evidence of CONSERVATION ON THE MARCH.

A case in point is a front page (second section) story in the Christian Science Monitor of September 26 about the whooping cranes. Three photographic reproductions accompany the article, one showing the cranes in flight, their jet-black wing tips contrasting strongly with their pure white bodies, and the others showing them standing on their long black stilts to a height of five feet. "Graceful" and "stately" are adjectives applied to them and the National Audubon Society has called them "the wildest, wariest creature on earth."

They certainly need to be wary, if their race is to survive, because only about twenty of them are still living. Until this summer their nesting place was not known but an aerial survey of Wood Buffalo Park in northern Alberta in July disclosed their hiding place in an almost inaccessible part of the park. This is the largest park in North America, containing 17,300 square miles, and it is to be hoped that its great size and wilderness character will protect the cranes and allow them to breed.

This will not happen if the same fate befalls Wood Buffalo Park that has already resulted in the partition of Tweedsmuir Provincial Park in northern British Columbia. This was the second largest park in North America until two months ago when the British Columbia Government decided to reduce it in size by one quarter as a result of the commercial invasion by the Aluminum Company of Canada.

The drama of the whooping cranes is in their annual migration to their wintering grounds in Texas. They have to run the gauntlet of thousands of gunners lying in wait along the route of their migration. Although great publicity has been given to their plight, one ignorant, trigger-happy gunner could contribute greatly to the extinction of a superb race of birds. Because of their immense size and handsome build public imagination would be fired more by such a tragedy than in the case of the passenger pigeon and heath hen, now vanished from the face of the earth.

Recently a still greater threat to their survival has appeared in plans of the U. S. Air Force to do photo-flash bombing in their Texas wintering area. Protests have been made by the National Audubon Society, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the Canadian Government, so far not heeded.

The Armed Services have also clashed with the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Oklahoma where they have been trying to take over large areas of the Wichita Mountains National Wildlife Refuge for target practice. Protests of conservationists have also fallen on deaf ears, although there is some hope that Secretary of the Interior McKay may be willing and able to prevent the transfer.

To The Editor

Carmel, California
October 12, 1955
Editor, Carmel Pine Cone:

Fluoridation of the Peninsula water supply was defeated at a popular election in June 1952 by a vote of 7407 to 4422. Bills in the State Legislature to force fluoridation on a state level were defeated at the last session. Now comes an attempt to get in the back door through a hearing called by the California State Public Utilities Commission in Oroville on October 20 to determine whether it has the right to force the private water company supplying Oroville to fluoridate the water of that city without consulting the voters.

If this succeeds, they could assume the same power over all private water systems, including ours. Since when has democracy degenerated to a point where it will meekly submit to mass regimentation of this kind?

Protests sent to the California State Public Utilities Commission, State Building, San Francisco, will help. Let the people of each community decide this matter for themselves.

Very sincerely,
Mrs. Erba M. McCabe

Meet the Gillums

who set up housekeeping
in San Leandro in 1935

20 YEARS AGO — when Grover and Beatrice Gillum were married, they had just three appliances in their first home: waffle iron, electric iron, toaster.

TODAY — the Gillums and their daughters, Linda and Gale, have 16 appliances, including: automatic washer, vacuum cleaner, gas range, refrigerator, radio, television, sewing machine, infra-red lamp, gas water heater and gas furnace.

Today they buy $14 worth of gas and electricity for $10

... for the average unit cost is about 1/3 less than it was in 1935

The average California family today uses three times as much gas and electricity as it did twenty years ago.

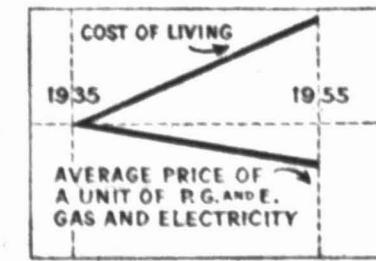

And, like the Gillums, you're probably using more gas and electricity as you add more appliances and lighting to your home.

As a result, your bill may be higher. But it is far lower than it would have been twenty years ago. For the average cost of a unit of gas and electricity is down about one-third, compared with 1935. Thus, the Gillums' gas and electric bill in a recent month was $10.03. In 1935, the same amount would have cost $14. Your own bill would probably show similar savings.

Can you think of any other prices that are lower today than 20 years ago? No wonder we say ...

Gas and Electricity are cheap in California!

Shore Leave . . .

From Admiral "Kelly" Turner's old flagship, U.S.S. Eldorado, Kurt von Meier wrote home to his mother, Mrs. Julian von Meier last month of an idyllic three-day leave in Japan. A Carmel High School alumnus, Kurt completed two years at the University of California before applying for a year of active duty. When it is completed, he will return to college to continue his major in foreign relations. Meanwhile in "I" Division (cartography and printing) he has learned to map maps, has seen something of the Pacific world, and at the moment is having his tonsils removed by the Navy in San Diego. He'll be home on leave for Thanksgiving.

We have just pulled out of Yokosuka, and are headed toward open seas and Hawaii, where I will mail this letter.

It is a shame we only had 3 days in Japan, as it is a fascinating country. I would like to spend more time there. I dropped you a card from Lake Yamanaka where I went for two days.

It was drizzling when the ship pulled into Yokosuka harbor about 10 A.M. Monday. The base is typically ugly, just a big shipyard. Bob Reynolds and myself left the ship about 10:30 and headed toward the train station. First we had to change our MPC (Military payment certificates—they don't pay you in this, you have to change American money into MPC—greenbacks are illegal on the beach in Japan—then you have to change the MPC in Yen). We finally got into the station and on the train.

The Jap trains really run on schedule. The first train was electric and quite nice. We went through several small towns. They are very close together in this part of the island. Some are pretty large too. Passed through Kamakura, Zushi and Taura to Ofuna where we switched trains. The next one took us south along the coastline to Kozu where we boarded a coal burner. The train headed up a valley that narrowed into a canyon at Matsuda. All of the farms were a fascinating sight. Wherever anything will grow—there the Japanese plant. The farms are all pretty small—some less than 1 acre. No fields of wheat here. Every farm is checkerboarded to grow 10 or 12 different crops. Some "fields" are only a few feet square. There are lots of trees here—chestnut and yew—and many hedges and small bushes. Some of the prettiest are the wisteria arbors, although they aren't in bloom. The valleys as a rule are small, so hills are all around. On these hills are a profusion of pines. Also some cypress and a type of citrus. Often the hills are terraced, but many of them look just like Point Lobos' Whalers Knoll without as many rocks.

The bad part of the trip came when we left Matsuda and started winding up the steep canyon to Gotemba, following the river. There are about a dozen tunnels—some of them pretty long—so the smoke filled the cars and damn near asphyxiated us! Other than that, it wasn't bad at all—a most pleasant trip—uncrowded (we traveled second class). The cars are very clean and comfortable, white slips over the arms and backs of the seats. Only about half full, not like the third class cattle cars! There is no first class here! But in Hong Kong there was no second class—only first and third—you're either rich or poor!

Few Japanese speak English—though you can always make yourself faintly understood at least—or find someone who can savvy a little. In Formosa and China at least the cabbies, conductors and cops knew English—but here, all the foreigners learn Japanese!

They are extremely polite people—even the merchants—who won't even wait on you unless you ask them—afraid of insulting you even though they are dying to make a sale. Of course there are some lower class who have received

Autumn, the scuff and scuttle of the year,
When leaves unfist,
And strata down the levels of the air,
When birds clock weatherwards,
And twilight beds early in the ricks—

Forecast no clapping spring, they tick
Only the going: scuttled clouds,
The horizon snapped by the scuff of sun,
And the moon tipping dry lips
Through the hollow drought of sky.

U. N. Day In Korea

By KLAUS J. LEHMANN

(Editor's Note: When the author was in Korea last year he attended a memorial service at the world's only United Nations' Cemetery. Upon returning to his assigned military unit he wrote these impressions of the ceremony. The thoughts expressed on that United Nations' Day, a year ago, still hold true today. Klaus is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Lehmann, and is expected home in November.)

It is a relatively small area, up on a hill and beautifully landscaped. On one side you look down into the blue-green waters of the Pacific. On the other sides small patches of newly tilled soil blend with the green areas of terraced rice paddies to form pleasing patterns. On high white staffs fly the flags of 21 nations. This is the world's only United Nations' Cemetery. Here, in Tanggek, Korea, a memorial ceremony was held on October 24—United Nations' Day.

It was a short ceremony—short but impressive. Units from eight nations participated in the colorful event. There were Korean Marine and Naval units; groups from New Zealand and Canada and the Royal Australian Regiment; men from Turkey and France and Thailand; United States Infantry and Marine and Air Force men. The red berets of the 4th Canadian Guard, the blue berets of the Commonwealth contingent, the brown of the New Zealand, the white gloves and spats of the military police—all were reflected in the shimmering silver helmets of the honor guard.

The roar of five jet planes, flying overhead in formation, was the signal for the ceremony to begin. Twelve wreaths were laid at the United Nations memorial, a chain enclosed area in the center of the cemetery. Fourteen rifle men fired a ceremonial three round salute. Taps were sounded with the two bugles, one echoing the other from a distance, and the flags of 21 nations, until now at half staff, were slowly raised to the full height of their respective poles.

Thousands of men lie dead here, in a country which to many was foreign. Why did they die, and why did we, the living, gather together for a memorial service? The Chaplains Invocation, I think, helps to answer the question. ". . . to celebrate the formation of an organization dedicated to the peaceful solutions of international differences and for the assurance to all nations that their land is their own, and that their piece of land cannot be taken from them. To assure these principles it has already become necessary that soldiers of different nations sacrifice their lives, so that the day may dawn when the patriot of any nation can freely say, 'I am a citizen of this nation, and I will live in its borders and will enjoy the government of my choice' . . ."

A highlight of the ceremony, directed by the Commander in Chief of the United Nations' Command, were the remarks by the Commanding General of the nearby Pusan Military Post. The General's remarks, commemorating this ninth United Nations Anniversary, followed along lines similar to the Chaplain's Invocation. ". . . Just as it has been difficult for individuals to make the decision that neither imprisonment, nor torture nor death would shake them from their determination that the principles by which they live would not be abandoned, so the United Nations, in defense of the course on which it has embarked, of which these graves in this soil of Korea are a symbol, will need to hold fast to the course on which, not the seeking of peace but the upholding of principle; not the promotion of individual prosperity but the maintenance of individual rights; not the exaltation of the state but the recognition of the dignity and worth of the individual, are the guiding marks. It rests not only on the determination to be ready, but (Continued on Page Eleven)

R. D. Donnelly III Arrives

Lieutenant (jg) and Mrs. Raymond Daniel Donnelly II are the parents of Raymond Daniel Donnelly III who was born at Fort Ord Hospital on September 29. They are living in Carmel Valley while Lieutenant Donnelly is taking a nine months' course at the General Line School. The Donnellys arrived here in September from Jacksonville, Florida. In a month's time the new baby is going to meet both of his sets of grandparents as the Donnellys are expecting Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Donnelly I to arrive here from Indiana at the same time as Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. John Ebersbaker land from the boat which will have brought them home from Manila where Lieutenant Commander Ebersbaker has been stationed.

Boom Went The Hearts

Dr. R. A. Kocher attended the Annual Heart Symposium in San Francisco last week starting on Thursday. There were 500 medical men in attendance and for the first time the patients to be examined were brought from the hospitals to the doctors, instead of the reverse procedure which is usually followed. X-rays of hearts were magnified on screens for the medical men and for the first time wire recordings of heart beats had been made and were played for those attending. The heart beats boomed out over the audience and then specialists were asked to comment on the abnormalities . . . "a very practical method of teaching" was Doctor Kocher's opinion.

Randy Almost Through Boot Camp

Randy Houghtelling, son of Mrs. Vera Houghtelling, will finish his Marine Boot camp training at the end of this month. Randy, if he had not joined the Marines, would be a member of the senior class at Carmel High School this year. After he is through his preliminary training in San Diego in a couple of weeks, he will then be assigned either to Camp Pendleton or one of the marine schools for further training.

Color Slides of France

Dr. Raoul H. Blanque, honorary president of the Alliance Francaise of San Francisco, will give an illustrated talk on France before the members and friends of La Causerie Francaise, at the Carmel Art Gallery at 8:00 o'clock on Saturday evening, October 22. Dr. Blanque will show some of his latest color slides of France and North Africa, which he has made on numerous visits to Europe.

There will be a short business meeting for the election of officers of La Causerie Francaise for the coming term. Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the program, and a small charge will be made to cover expenses. The meeting will be open to the general public.

La Causerie Francaise recently announced its affiliation with the national Federation de l'Alliance Francaise. Through this membership the local French language society will be able to present distinguished speakers from New York and France throughout the coming year.

Open House

The Carmel Youth Center Open House on October 1 was the best yet. Carmel young people who signed the guest list numbered 287 and an estimated 200 adults visited the center during the evening. No list was kept of out of town young people present but a goodly number visited the party during the evening.

Response to the Pine Cone's appeal for reference books for the proposed study hall at the Center was almost instantaneous, as a short time after the Pine Cone appeared on the streets, a donor, who prefers to remain anonymous, ordered a fine Spanish-English Dictionary from the Bookworm to be delivered to the Center. Other reference volumes have been donated, but still to be obtained are an Encyclopedia Britannica, a world globe and National Geographic maps of the world.

Jane Tonkin a Saturday's Child

The first child for Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Tonkin is Jane Florence who was born at the Peninsula Hospital at 1:20 o'clock in the morning on October 1. According to her mother she is "a ravishing blonde" and weighed a husky eight pounds, eight and one half ounces at birth. Her parents came to Carmel from Berkeley in January when Mr. Tonkin took over the position of administrator at the Peninsula Community Hospital, so young Jane is also a "staff baby." Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Eiden Tonkin of Berkeley and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Karstadt of Pacific Palisades.

Torres-Artellan Wedding

Ruth Genevieve Torres, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Torres of Monterey, and Paul Artellan, son of Mrs. B. D. Artellan of Carmel, were married in Carmel Mission at a nuptial mass performed by Monsignor O'Connell on October 1. Paul has been a member of the Mission Parish all his life.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white imported lace and net wedding gown over satin. The fitted bodice of lace extended to the hip line where it joined the full embroidered net skirt in a small ruffle. Two panels of lace extended into the skirt on each side and the skirt swept into a train in back. Her fingertip net veil edged in lace was held in place by a crown of pearls and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis centered by an orchid.

Maid of honor was Josephine Billman, and the bridesmaids were Barbara Tibbets, Dolores Sanchez, Jeannette Carr, Alva Reyna and Doris DeAinalar. They were gowned alike in floor-length orchid net dresses with satin bows of a darker shade at the back of the low neckline and with bands of the same satin trimming their full skirts. Bandeaux of the satin decorated with a satin flower on one side held their face veils in place. Their flowers were bouquets of carnations in a deeper shade than their dresses.

Susan Artellan, niece of the bridegroom was flower girl in a white organdy dress and bouquet like the bridesmaids except in miniature form. A band of the same flowers was in her hair.

Ushers were Bernard Torres, Charles and Louis Sanchez, Frank Silva, Dennis Narvaez, Peter Carpenter and Zane Byrd. Best man was Paul's brother, Benjamin.

Mrs. Torres chose a light blue sheath dress with matching duster and black accessories for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Artellan, mother of the groom, was in a two-piece lavender outfit with black accessories. They both wore white orchid corsages.

A dinner for relatives and the wedding party was held at Cerrito's following the ceremony and in the evening a reception was given at El Estero Hall.

After a honeymoon in San Francisco the bride and groom returned to Carmel where they are living on Mission Street above Twelfth. Paul is employed at Kip's and his bride has resumed her work with the Pacific Grove Board of Education.

Third Child For The Higgins

Martha Ann Higgins arrived at the Peninsula Community Hospital on October 2, a Sunday, which according to the old nursery rhyme, should give her a life of greatest promise. She has an older sister, Barbara, five and a half, and a brother, Jon, who is four. Dr. and Mrs. Charles Higgins, her parents, came here in May when Dr. Higgins took over duties as resident physician at the County Hospital. Formerly the Higgins had lived in Menlo Park. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Clawson of Burlingame who had a visit from Barbara and Jon while their mother was in the hospital. On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Clawson brought the older children home to Carmel and they all met Martha for the first time.

Margaret Heldt At Rocketry Meet

Continental Air Defense Commander-in-Chief, General Earle E. Partridge, is this week being host to 37 honor Ground Observer Corps members invited to the world wide air-to-air rocketry competition in Yuma, Arizona. Representative from the peninsula post is Margaret Heldt who has the chance to see the best rocketry in the world and meet the men who fly at the fantastic speeds of 200 feet per second faster than a pistol bullet as they attack their targets in the competition. At the end of Mrs. Heldt's week in Yuma she will also meet the champion.

All this is a reward for the many hours of work she has put in at the local post, both as observer, and in organization.

Academic Switch

Mrs. Howard Elton Clark will be the Carmel School Board representative at the school trustees' convention at Coronado October 20 to 22. School Superintendent Stuart Mitchell will attend the school administrators' convention at San Diego October 19-21. They are both riding on the train one way and flying the other without sacrificing the financial advantage of round-trip-tickets. Mitchell is taking the train south; Mrs. Clark is flying. They exchange tickets and return vice-versa. The workings of the academic mind.

Spencers Back From Japan

Colonel and Mrs. Thomas C. Spencer are back from a three month's trip to Japan. They went to the Orient to see their son-in-law and daughter, Colonel and Mrs. John B. Richardson, Jr., and the two Richardson boys, John, 12, and Spencer, 10. Colonel Richardson is stationed near Tokyo at Camp Zama, headquarters for the Far East Command, where he is a member of the General Staff, and his family has been with him for a year and a half. Colonel and Mrs. Spencer traveled both ways by boat with brief stops, both coming and going, in Honolulu and Guam. Colonel Spencer, who had visited Japan before World War I found that, at least on the surface, Japan was much westernized since his previous visit.

Milton and Jane Mayer accompanied by the children, Julie, Rock and Dicken, are sailing from New York on Saturday for Europe for an indefinite stay. The Mayers have spent the summer in New York awaiting possible permission for Milton to be allowed to go to Russia to do a series of articles for national magazines. also upon the willingness to act."

As the National Anthem of the Republic of Korea, the host nation on whose soil the ceremony was held, died away in the background; as a warming sun shone up in a cloudless sky; as the caravans of vehicles slowly wound their way back to their respective bases—I am sure that everyone hoped and prayed that nations would learn to live together in peace and harmony, and that similar ceremonies would not have to be repeated in other United Nations' Cemeteries.

Five Concerts In Symphony Series

The Monterey County Symphony Orchestra is giving five concerts this year instead of the customary four, as well as a five concert series in Salinas. Conductor Millar is enthusiastic over the player turn out at the weekly rehearsals at the High School and feels that this year will be a musically memorable one in the history of the County Symphony.

Guest artist at the November concert will be young violinist David Abel, who delighted symphony audiences twice last year, and in February Roslyn Frantz, brilliant young pianist from the Bay area will play with the orchestra.

Others scheduled to be heard during the season are Betty Rae Stanley, violinist; David Del Tredici, pianist; and Jean Mattos, cellist.

Shore Leave . . .

a base introduction to western culture.

At Otemba we switched to a bus. It took only two hours to Otemba from Yokosuka, many stops along the way, but the train only stops for 30 seconds in Yokohama, and less at the others. When the 15 seconds or so are up, the train rolls! They are always on time! But the bus was different. It still held rigidly to the schedule, but the road was so poor (bumpy, steep and winding) that it took over an hour to go 24 kilometers. Only once, I think did the road dip even slightly, the rest was up, up, up. We passed the artillery range where there was such a stink a few months ago. This was the same road they were firing over—still are, I guess. I must agree with the Japanese there—wishes the Americans would stop using the beautiful and sacred slopes of Mt. Fuji for an impact area. The howitzers make quite an obnoxious racket too. You'd think they could find some other place to play war games. Incidentally this is all in a national park—you'd never see an atom bomb test in—say Yellowstone. No sir.

(More of Kurt's shore leave in next week's Pine Cone.)

Sporting Notes . . .

with thrilling runs, pass plays, jarring blocks, and touchdown-saving tackles as the Lobos outscored Shasta, 38 to 26. Ron Wulverton, ex-Padre gridiron, continues to be the sparkplug for the Lobos, quarterbacking the T-formation attack with the finesse of an old pro and providing clutch runs when the chips are down... Henry Overin, ex-Padre gridiron and baseball star, is back in Carmel for the winter after a successful pitching season with Albuquerque in the West Texas-New Mexico League. In the off season, Hank is lending a hand with the scouting and football coaching at Carmel High and is spending his nights rasslin' sardines on Monterey's cannery row . . . An incident in a recent football game shows what modern teen-agers are up against when trying to diagnose plays off the popular belly series. Gilroy's quarterback, Ron Leonti, made a double fake to his right half and fullback, kept the ball and walked by the defensive end, continued on thirty more yards over the goal line and had to hold the ball aloft so officials and players would know where it was. In the meantime the well-meaning referee had followed the fullback and blew the non-existent ball dead when the fullback was tackled. Talk about the old shell game. Peninsula grid fans can see prestidigitator Leonti in action at Carmel High this Saturday afternoon when the Gilroy Mustangs meet the Padres.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

Man's responsibility to make religion practical in his activities throughout the week will be emphasized in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Doctrine of Atonement" at Christian Science services Sunday.

Scriptural selections include Paul's advice to the Hebrews (4:14): "Seeing then that we have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession."

Also pointing up the need for emulating the master Christian is the following passage to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (37:22-25): "It is possible,—yea, it is the duty and privilege of every child, man, and woman,—to follow in some degree the example of the Master by the demonstration of Truth and Life, of health and holiness."

Sunset School Journalism Club Reports . . .

This is how our teachers spent their vacations:

Mr. Pete Glod spent most of his summer at his home in Del Monte Forest. He spent two weeks at San Jose State College. Miss Vicki Nicolaus, one of Sunset's new fourth grade teachers spent the summer in Alaska. She worked with the Girl Scouts in Ketchikan and Juneau. This summer Miss Janet Bernays went camping in the Sierras for a little while.

Miss Mary Lee Desmond visited her parents in Berkeley and went to the Mother Lode country this summer. Miss Harriett Norman had a very interesting summer in Norway visiting friends and relatives. She flew to New York, then on to Norway. This summer Mrs. Sarah Sproull went to El Rancho Del Obispo, which is near Healdsburg, on the Russian River. Mrs. Sproull was a counselor for a High School group.

Miss Sally McPnail spent her vacation in Florida. While she was there she saw the Key West Everglades National Park and the Swannee River. Mr. Charles Blee spent his summer in the High Sierras taking people horse-back riding. This summer Mrs. Beatrice Rea went to Stanford University and took a course in Intergroup Education. She also spent some time in San Francisco visiting her relatives.

Mr. Neil Jensen spent most of time at Yellowstone National Park, Sun Valley, Idaho, and along the West coast. Mrs. Bea Wiegman, one of our new teachers at Sunset, spent her summer at Fresno State College. She was there twelve weeks. She also moved this summer from Hanford, a city in Kings County, where she had been teaching the eighth grade for eight years. Mr. Pritchard spent his summer doing work in education at Loyola University in Los Angeles.

Miss Eleanor Cence went to Mexico this summer. While she was there she went to the University of Mexico in Mexico City and took some courses in Mexican Folklore, Culture, and Art. Miss Cence not only did some studying in Mexico but did some traveling as well. She visited Oaxaca and went to the famous ruins of Monte Albán and Mictlán. Miss Cence also went swimming and sailing at Acapulco. The sight of a pink flamingo in the wilds was a thrilling sight to Miss Cence, but perhaps the most thrilling thing of all was climbing the ancient pyramids in the rain.

Mr. Arthur Hull spent a week in Lake County visiting friends. He also spent two weeks at the Presidio of San Francisco in Reserve Army Training. Miss Doris Lathem went to San Jose State College this summer and took a Music Curriculum course and participated in two concerts. She also went to Nevada and had a wonderful time. During the summer, Mr. Ken Wiese worked with the shop crew in making new things for the school. He also went to San Francisco to see the sights.

Mr. Joe Broadman and his family built a house during the summer. It took three months to build. Mr. Arthur Holman and Jamie went for a two week vacation to Oregon. They went fishing in the Willamette River and the McKenzie River. After they got home, Mr. Holman played for dances in the band.

This summer Mr. Orville Rogers, Sunset School Principal, spent two weeks on military duty at the Presidio of San Francisco. He also spent three weeks in Ann Arbor, Mich. Miss Mary-Stewart Hoopes, her father, and her sister visited Banff and Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies. They also saw Shasta Dam, which is in Northern California. Mrs. Mary Clayton went to San Jose State College over the summer for a course in health education.

Antoschowitz, German, China's J. E. Hoover

Tsingtao.

Ted Antoschowitz, who had been disturbed and puzzled by the growth of pawn shops, decided to stroll about one Sunday to improve his speaking knowledge of Chinese and keep his finger on the pulse of things.

Entering a small shop where a group of men were sipping tea and playing a finger game, he joined the group. They recognized "Mr. An" and the conversation shifted to what an unfortunate end he might meet if he ever encountered Foo-Al. During this banter, Antoschowitz noticed a small, diffident little man get up and slip out. With a policeman's instinct working strongly, he got up and followed. The man attempted to slip around the corner of the building. Mr. An was waiting for him around the corner.

"You're Foo-Al" said Antoschowitz, certain for no reason at all. In vain did the little man protest, deny, argue. To the station house they went. And Foo-Al it was. While there was nothing against him in Tsingtao, he was promptly handed over to the eager Chinese police of the adjoining area and the word promptly went out that the underworld Riviera was ended.

For this little maneuver, Mr. Antoschowitz was decorated by the Chinese government.

During this era Antoschowitz introduced several innovations into police work in China. He brought the first use of the fingerprint classification system to the area. He also introduced the use of police dogs to the coast and at one time his force employed as many as 76 German shepherds.

Most interesting use of these dogs was to prevent smuggling of narcotics. The dogs could sniff the presence of narcotics on a person when the most thorough search failed to turn it up, and were used for some time on the docks for this reason.

When the First World War broke out, Antoschowitz was still on duty. The Japanese (who many people forgot were Allied with America and Britain in that conflict) promptly marched in. They wanted Antoschowitz to continue working in his professional capacity, but he indignantly refused, and soon found himself in a prison camp.

Here he stayed till the conflict was over and by 1920 found himself back in Germany, retired. (This was possible because overseas service counted double).

In 1926 tending quietly to his garden, he began to receive urgent cables from the Chinese government requesting that he return. A prominent official, and a former friend of Antoschowitz, had been murdered and all efforts to apprehend the criminal had been fruitless.

So back to China went Mr. Antoschowitz, with something of a sigh of relief, he confesses, with a twinkle in his eye.

The one-year term he went for stretched out for over a decade, and the next thing he knew, his old nemesis, the Japanese, were back in 1937 in control of the area. Although they regarded him with little sympathy, the Japanese did not disturb Antoschowitz this time. He finally left China in 1949 with his only daughter.

The latter had married Commander R. N. Maitby, an American naval advisor to the Chinese Government, and when Commander Maitby left the service in 1940, the little family group came to San Francisco. Two years ago they came to the Peninsula, and have lived in Pacific Grove ever since. Antoschowitz surrounded by his decorations, his stamp collection

(he is a member of the Monterey Peninsula club) mementos of his long service, and his many memories.

Among these memories, the one that amuses and shocks him a little to this day is the old Chinese custom that used to allow a prisoner on the way to execution to parade the streets reviling his judge, executioner, police opponents, etc. "The language got a little choice after a time," "Mr. An" says.

Another old custom of "Squeeze" or graft reached its ultimate refinement in the old days in China around the turn of the century, when members of a man's family slated for execution used to bribe the executioner to perform the deed in one stroke of his sword and not mess the victim up.

"It was a fine life, handling law and order in those days," says Antoschowitz with a happy sigh, "and I enjoyed every minute of it."
